A General Robotic Control System using Reinforcement Learning with Limited Feedback

Executive Summary

A robot intelligence can be simplified into a black box, with inputs such as sensor data and outputs such as motor control. The purpose of this project was to develop an intelligence that not only can adapt to any set of robot inputs and outputs, but can also be trained using reinforcement learning.